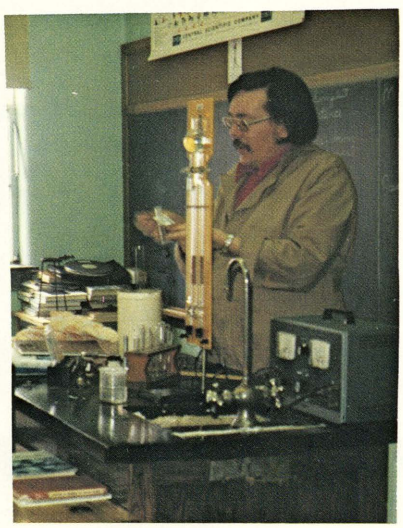
ON TARGET SOUTH SCHOOL



CLASSES 8 SPORTS 16 STUDENT LIFE 38

You can be ON TARGET also as you browse through the pages of this book and remember the activities and events or your past year at South School. We hope these memories will be of pleasant and enjoyable experiences, of meeting new acquaintances and renewing old friendships.

Through the efforts of the many parents, teachers and students who organized the Save Our Schools program, the money for sports and a full educational program throughout the school year was raised. In early November the milleage was proposed once again, and succeeded in passing. South School was still ON TARGET with their usual extra-curricular activities such as the school dances, the play, and several other events. As the year came to a close so did the events and activities, all of which were concluded by the 9A Prom.

Activities Play A Large Role At South

CLASSES

Math, English/ an interesting variety

In our Math and Foreign Language Department, there is a variety of classes to choose from. In the Math Department the ninth grade students have a choice of three classes: algebra, introductory algebra, and general math.

In the Foreign Language Department there are French and Spanish. Not only do we have excellent Math and Foreign Language Departments but we also have an excellent English Department which the students work hard in to achieve proper grammar.

Fine Arts, Science/ Enjoyment Provided For All South Students

Art, speech, drama, vocal, and instrumental music provide a variety of activities in the Fine Arts Department. Making art projects for the Red Cross and putting on puppet shows for children of our community are just two of the ways our students are kept busy.

Our Science Department, with its fields in chemistry, biology, and physics, provide an active course for all grades.

Social Studies/ new variety added to classes

Students end the year with a new knowledge of their country's history and government. All students participate in one or two semesters of social studies and have a good time alongwith learning. Displays and diaries help illustrate the Civil War, discussions are held and everybody has a chance to voice his own opinion, speakers talk to the students and many other activities are always going on. Each year new variety is being added to social studies classes.

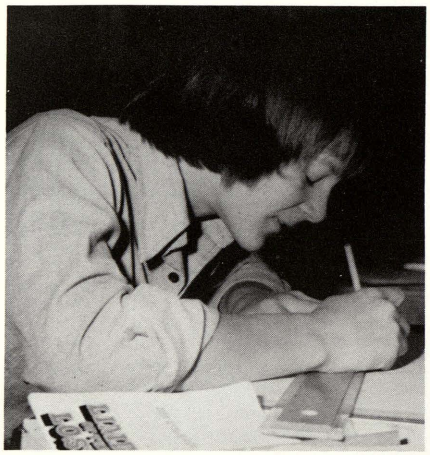
Vocational/ Classes Help Students Prepare For Future



The world is open to us and classes taught everyday are helping us with our careers. Drafting, printing, woodshop, and homemaking improve student's abilities to be draftmen, printers, craftsmen, or housewives. Through these classes, skills not even the learner himself knows he has, show through. Along with the skills many attractive and interesting projects are added to the students home. Preparations for the future are starting right here at South School.

While academics is the primary function of South, physical fitness has a definite place in the curriculum. Many opportunites are offered to develop athletic skills and all around fitness, both on the athletic field and in the gyms. Included in these are gym classes, physical fitness testing, and intramural games. These games permit student to compete in sports who might not otherwise be able, and enables students to explore all of the various sports offered.

Cheerleaders Help Improve School Spirit

As we started the school year off most of us knew there would not be any school sports because of the millage refusal. A few weeks after school started, students and parents raised the needed money by individual donations and the Save Our Schools Campaign.

For two months the students and parents stressed how badly they needed the money, not only for sports but for other educational purposes too. As it turned out, the millage did pass and the sports program was in effect for the rest of the year.

South had another outstanding year in athletics, we showed sportsmanship and a great deal of spirit.

Both boys and girls have done very well in their games. The pictures on these few pages show what kind of spirit we have at South School.

The ninth grade football team got off to a slow start with two ties and one loss but finished the season with a strong three wins and one tie. This put South in second place, only one half game behind Webber.

Under the coaching of Roger Little, the team finished another winning year.

Rebel Girls Fight Hard: Take Second

This year's volleyball team took second place in the city league. The team consisted of sixteen ninth grade girls, their new coach Miss Val Stamper, and two managers. The girls started the season with seven straight victories, then fell to a loss, but they came back to win seven more games and ended the season with an uneven pattern of three wins and one loss. Their final record is seventeen wins and three losses.

The eighth grade girls' basketball team captured the city championship with a lone first place by finishing an undefeated season with three wins and zero losses.

Swim Team Up Against Tough Competition

After nine consecutive championships South bowed to heavy competition from Webber and archrival North. Lack of interest and experience were the key factors, as much practice time had to be spent on rules and procedures rather than actual practice. The lack of interest was at least partially overcome; at the beginning of the year only eight seniors boys tried out, and by the end there were 15. But the lack of experience could not be made up for, and South did not do as well as it had in previous years. Perhaps more even competition from other schools will stimulate interest in swimming all around, so South's bad year could be a blessing in disguise. Special thanks go to those senior boys who tried out after the team picture was taken, namely Doug Phillips, Brian McCullen, Dan Johns, Kevin Lynar, and Jim Watson.

Girls Maintain Excellence

For the third straight year, the girls' swim team showed their ability with another winning season. The team, coached by Mrs. Pamela Van Overloop, exhibited their talent by breaking several of their own records. Our relay teams have alo done an excellent job by putting out another winning effort. Fine individual performances were made by all of the swimmers and divers throughout the season. The girls had a lot of spirit, and hope for another winning season next year.

Rebels Capture 8th Straight Championship

Last years' baseball team captured the City Championship for the eighth consecutive time. South also defeated all opponents giving them a 10-0 record. South's hitting attack was led by Ray Wildey who batted .470 for the season. The pitching was led by Kip Kipke with six wins and Curt Young with three wins, including a perfect game against Central. With many fine eighth graders coming back, again South should have another winning year.

Rebel Runners Show Spirit

Despite finishing fifth in the city finals, South's Track team worked hard and had many fine performances. Individual performances were good, notably in the distances areas. South always did well in the quarter mile and could hold their own in any running event.

But lacking strength in the field events, South had to rely a lot on the seventh and eighth graders. As Coach Little puts it, "With the experience this team has, we're looking forward to this season ahead, and I think we're going to get some wins."

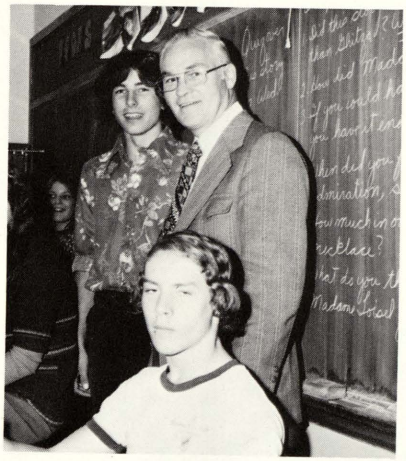
STUDENT LIFE



President's Council officers for this year are (L. TO R.), President Juli Fowler, Vice-President Cary Kipke, Principal John D. Ekelof, and Secretary-Treasurer Zeph Phillips.

Student Council Keeps Active

The Student Council each year is involved in many activities and this year was no exception. As usual, we are supporting our child overseas, Eunice Sathiabalan in India. Last year's election for president was a great surprise. Juli Fowler became our second girl president in 53 years. Our vice president is Cary Kipke. The first school dance of the year was sponsored by the Student Council. The proceeds went to buy plastic holders for printed cards saying "This Rebel encouraged his parents to vote". The students took them home, had their parents sign them and wore them to school the next day. Voter turnout was better than expected and the millage did go through.

South Enjoyed Helpful Staffs

There are many student staffs at South that have assisted the students and teachers in their programs. These students received "S" pins for their donated time and services to our school.

A few of these hard working staff members are listed here.

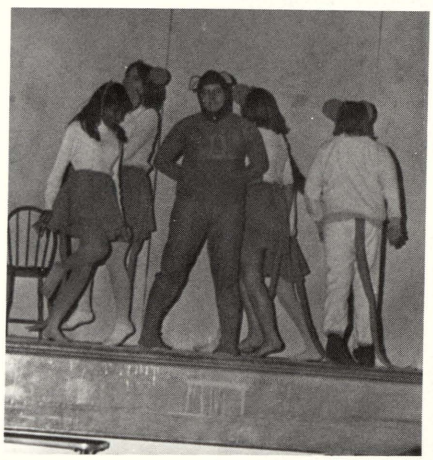
Happy Days For Children



Let the show begin! Four nervous ninth grade drama class students opened the Children's Theater Play, THE GINGERBREAD HOUSE IN THE FOREST, with a happy burst of applause from the children. Some 2,400 elementary students joined in the fright of Hansel and Gretel as they were trapped by the witch Nada, felt sorry for the bewitched cookie children, and laughed at the funny elves and the cute owl. After months of hard work, trying to master their roles of children, Mrs. Brenda Palmateer's class performed another successful play March 10, 11, and 12. The success of the play wasn't the only award for the drama class, another happy afternoon had been added to the childrens lives. Another interesting and talented skit was performed, but this time on television. A rather worried group of eighth grade students from speech class were relieved when their skit, CHRISTMAS TEA, was a hit on VALLEY TODAY, Kay Wyman's television show, December 20. Children Theater and the skit are just a few of the activities that interest many ninth grade students.

Successful Performances Given By Cast

Long rehearsals, hours of memorizing lines, and messy make-up all played an important part in this years' play FATHER KNOWS BEST, directed by Mrs. Brenda Palmateer. The plot revolves around Jim Anderson, whose children, job, and wife manage to keep him busy in one way or another. The production, however, was not achieved without many pitfalls on the way. Sets that needed to be repainted, wall flats that would not stand, and many absences made giving a polished performance a difficult but extremely worthwhile task.

Vocal Music More Than Just Concerts

Students often heard the singing down the hall in 210, but the talents of the choirs were not fully appreciated until concert time rolled around. But the real fun came in the many rehearsals, practices and choir classes. Under the leadership of Miss Mary Ellen Gase, the vocal music classes were exposed to a large variety of music, both new and old, and reflected it in their selections. The concerts were fun, both for the students and the audience. A piano solo by Sara Morey and a vocal solo by Diane Miller were high points in the concert.

(TOP) Our largest choir, the Mixed Choir, inspired us with a variety of music. (ABOVE) The Girls' Choir, made of eighth and ninth graders, added that needed bit of melody to our lives.

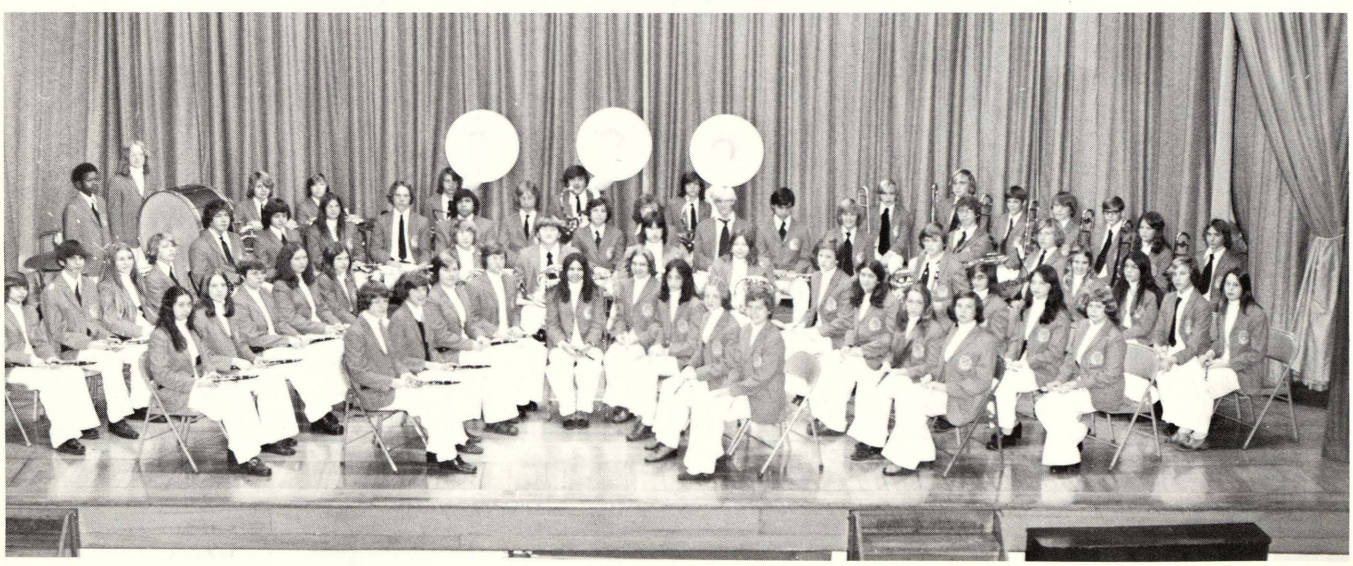
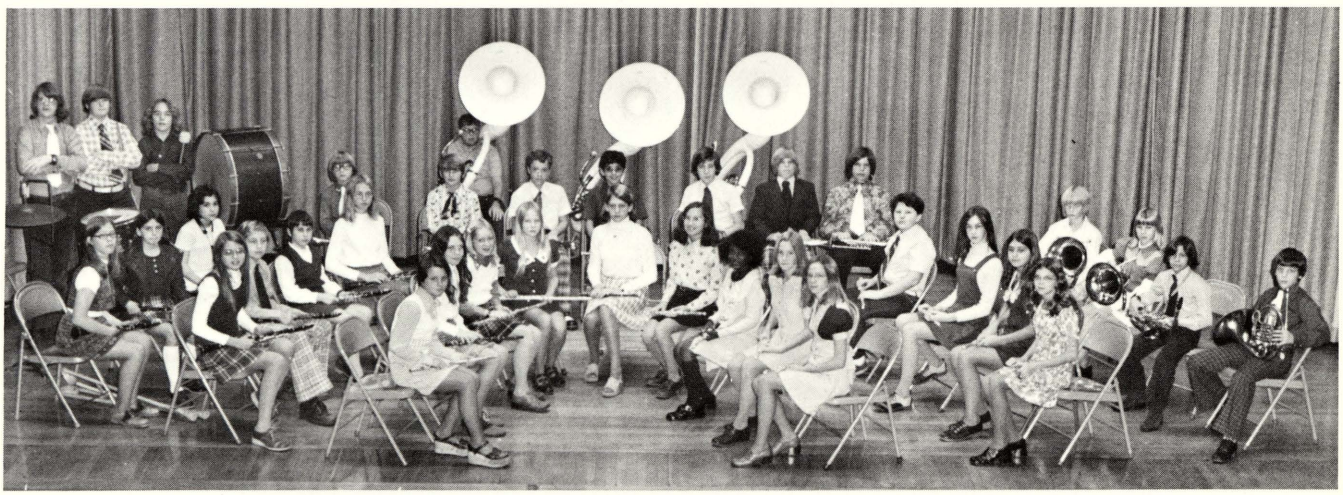
Music Important To Students

There is music in almost everyone's life, but music is especially important in the lives of many South School students. Many long hours of practicing are spent by each individual to perfect his or her part. The orchestra under the direction of Mr. David Austin, and the bands under the direction of Dr. Lloyd Jensen, all work hard to do their best for their concerts and contests.

(ABOVE) Jeff Dezelsky rehearses his solo for the Solo and Ensemble Festival. (ABOVE) Comprised of fine string instrumentalists, the Orchestra adds a variety of music to concerts and assemblies. (BELOW) The Symphonic Band is comprised of South's most experienced seventh, eighth, and ninth grade instrumentalists.





(TOP) The Concert Band will go to the district contest for the first time this year. (MIDDLE) The Intermediate Band works hard to achieve perfection in music. (BOTTOM) Seventh graders with previous experience in instrumental music usually find themselves in the Cadet Band when they arrive at South.

Journalism Staff Chronicles Year At South

The 1974-75 journalism staff worked hard this year to meet deadlines, write copy, take pictures, and also to think of our theme "ON TARGET". Besides making the yearbook, we eleven people also published our own newspaper the REBEL REVIEW, and a magazine composed of short stories and poems written by South's students, called the SOUTHERN GRAFFITI.

Staffs Improve South

Year after year the custodians and staffs at South have done a great job keeping our school neat and clean. We were fortunate this year to have these people at our school. (ABOVE LEFT, L. TO R.) Head custodian Harold Strothers, Harold DeLude, Harold Finch, Guadalupe Valtierra, Frank Sullivan, Eve Freeman, and Glenn Freeman are shown in a meeting with Mr. Ekelof. (FAR LEFT, L. TO R.) Helen Tesch, John Krogman, and Anne Wozniak, our paraprofessionals, assist the faculty in discipline and supervise the halls throughout the day. (LEFT) Mrs. Theresa Boyd's friendliness is noticed by all as she works to keep the building tidy. (LOWER FAR LEFT) Mrs. Margaret Duby and Mrs. Phyllis Lesh help students prepare meals in the cafeteria. (BELOW LEFT) Mr. Jerry Muyelle helps the paraprofessionals to insure our students safety. (NOT PICTURED) Mrs. Avist Jamison works in the Adjusted Study Program with Mr. Green. Mrs. Hedda Handovits assists in the custodial staff.

On Target 1975 Completed

As we lay aside our pens after completing the 1974-75 SIS BOOM we, the staff, would like to express our special thanks to the many people who helped make this yearbook possible. Mr. John Ekelof and the faculty for their cooperation; Mr. Kenneth Drake, our representative from the American Yearbook Company; Mr. Fred Briegel of Werkema's Studio; Miss Marion Brown and her art classes who helped publicize the yearbook by the use of posters and banners; and a very special thanks to our Journalism advisor Mrs. Helen Sparks. As a final thought we would like to say good-bye and thank you to all the students and faculty who make this year "ON TARGET"!
